

~~The Oracle System in Ancient Greek~~

Human being overwhelmed with mysteries of life and vastness of nature <sup>created</sup> ~~made~~ or need to communicate with divine. read the passage carefully

Divine wishes always guided human behaviour. In ancient Greece, these wishes were decoded by oracles and practiced by soothsayers. The soothsayers uttered their oracles by interpreting natural phenomena. Moreover, the interpretation of dream of palmistry. However, there were numerous instances in which god spoke to an intermediate for a short time by a divine mania. Here ~~the~~ prophet or prophetess delivered the message from gods to supplicants. Each oracle was directly associated with one or other of gods. Archetypal soothsayer for the Greeks was Apollo. The most renowned oracles was at Delphi while oldest was ~~Halt~~ of Dodona.

be precise and to the point there is no need to explain attend to pointed out issue
word count is missing too
need improvement

~~Effective Teaching: Beyond Rules and Rigidity~~

sentence is too long

In author's view, educational theorists are paying more attention to the negative aspect of not interfering with children and too little to the positive aspect of their company. If one ~~like~~ ~~love~~ likes the children as many people like animals, they will respond to their advices with good honoured grumbling. It is no use to have the sort of liking for valuable social endeavor or as an outlet for power impulses. The desirable sort of interest in children is in spontaneous pleasure. Teachers who have ~~this~~ quality, when need, will sometime interfere with children's freedom, without causing them psychological damage. Unfortunately, it is impossible for over-worked teachers. According to the author, education should not be a person's only profession. Without strict discipline, young people become tiring for society, and this fatigue eventually leads to irritation. Where friendliness exists, it should be needless to have rules in advance to treat the children. Affection and tact are more important than rule.

similar issues

need improvement

8/20

YOUSAF PAPER