

(2)

Q- Examine the status of women in Islam in the light of Quran and Sunnah, responding to modern misconception.

Outline &

Divine, Dignity, & Equality.

Legal, Economic, educational rights.

Family, Social, Political ~~rights~~ roles

Modern Misconceptions addressed.

Divine Creation

↳

Spiritual Equality

↳

Legal & Economic Rights.

↳

Protection + Participation

↳

Justice & Social Balance

→ Introduction : Women's Honour in Islam

Islam establishes women's dignity through divine guidance, combining moral, social, and spiritual dimensions. Rights and responsibilities are balanced, emphasizing honour, equality, and protection. This framework counters cultural biases and modern misrepresentations. Islam integrates ethical principles with practical societal application.

→ Divine Foundation of female dignity

Women's dignity in Islam originates from God's creation, ensuring inherent worth. No gender carries inherited inferiority; accountability and respect are equal. Dr. Hamidullah highlights that this spiritual equality precedes social and legal rights.

Pre-Islamic patriarchy is explicitly corrected through revelation and Sunnah guidance.

Ayat

> وَلَقَدْ كَرَّمْنَا بَنِي آدَمَ <
"We have certainly honoured the Children of Adam."

→ Spiritual and Moral Equality

Faith, accountability, and moral responsibility are identical for men and women. Rewards and punishments depend on conduct, not gender. Khurshid Ahmad emphasizes that spiritual parity forms the basis of all rights, rejecting assumptions of male superiority. Islam ensures gender justice in divine and social obligations.

Hadith

« ان الله لا يفضل رجلا على امرأة الا بالتقوى »

7

"God does not favour a man over a woman except by piety."

→ Legal Personhood
and Consent

s-

Women are independent legal entities entitled to consent in marriage and contracts. Quranic injunctions and Sunnah safeguard autonomy in personal and financial decisions. Muhammad Quth notes this was revolutionary for Arabian society. Islam balances protection with empowerment, respecting intellectual and moral agency.

Ayat

7 < ولا تنكحوا المتبرجات
" And do not marry unwilling women "

relate these headings and arguments to the qs statement.....

→ Economic Empowerment

Women retain full rights over property, mahr, and inheritance.

Quran 4:7 grants shares in wealth, ensuring financial dependence.

Umoor Chapra highlights Islam's economic foresight in guaranteeing security for women. These measures counter claims of economic subjugation, promoting equality and dignity.

→ Educational Rights
and knowledge

Islam obliges learning for both genders as a religious duty. Prophetic encouragement ensures intellectual empowerment and societal participation. Dr. Khalid Alvi emphasizes that education enhances moral reasoning and civic competence. Knowledge elevates women's roles, countering misperceptions of intellectual marginalisation historically portrayed.

Hadith

طلب العلم فریضة على كل مسلم

"Seeking knowledge is obligatory for every Muslim."

→ Marriage as Partnership :-

Marriage is based on mutual rights, compassion, and cooperation. Islam defines spousal roles clearly while ensuring equality and respect. Shibli Naumani notes the Quran promotes tranquility and mercy. Western critiques misinterpret authority as oppression, ignoring ethical reciprocity and moral obligations.

Ayat

وَمِنْ آيَاتِهِ أَنْ يَخْلُقَ لَكُمْ مِنْ أَنْفُسِكُمْ أَزْوَاجًا

"And among His signs is that He created for you mates."

→ Protection Against Abuse

Islam strictly forbids abuse and coercion, advocating respect and kindness. Prophetic conduct exemplified mercy within family structures. Mustafa Sabail stresses ethical treatment of women as essential in Islamic jurisprudence. Misinterpretations often arise from cultural practices, not Shariah principles.

Hadith

أخبركم خيركم خيركم
"The best among you is the one who is best to his wives."

→ Social and Public Participation

Women participated in early Islamic society as scholars, traders, and advisors. Historical records show active engagement in civic life.

Dr. Muhammad Asad highlights ethical boundaries enabled agency without oppression. Western critiques misrepresent social seclusion as doctrinal, ignoring historical evidence.

→ Justice-Based Differentiation

Islam recognizes functional differences without implying inferiority.

Responsibilities align with capabilities, ensuring fairness and societal balance. Abul Ala Mawdudi emphasises rights with duties for justice. This challenges absolute equality models that sometimes undermine practical governance and social harmony.

→ Political Voice and Consultation

Women's perspectives influenced community decisions; Hudaibiyyah negotiations. Participation demonstrates recognition of intellectual and ethical contributions. Muhammad Ali-Razaee notes this as foundational to consultative governance. Islam empowers women in public discourse within moral and societal limits.

Ayat
﴿ وَسُلِّمْ فِي الْأَمْرِ ﴾
" And ~~consult~~ them in the matter."

→ Reconciliation of Rights and duties

Islam links freedom with responsibility. Rights are intertwined with ethical conduct to ensure social stability. Ikhshid Ahmad highlights integration of dignity, obedience, and family obligations. This balances personal liberties with ~~collective~~ welfare, often missing in modern human rights narratives.

→ Responding to Misconceptions

Western critiques often conflate culture with Shariah. Practices violating Islamic ethics are projected as religious norms.

Muhammad Quth stresses accurate evaluation based on Quran and Sunnah. Clarification counters myths about oppression, seclusion, and absence of legal protection.

→ Ethical Freedom vs Exploitation

Islam safeguards women from moral and physical exploitation under the guise of "liberation." Ethical boundaries protect dignity, family, and society. Umar Chapra emphasises alignment of freedom with morality. Consumerist narratives often promote objectification, misrepresenting authentic Islamic teachings.

→ Contemporary Applications

Contemporary societies often blur Islamic principles with cultural traditions. Reform requires education, legal awareness, and ethical revival. Dr. Hamidullah notes restoration of Quranic rights ensures sustainable empowerment. Policy, practice, and personal conduct must reflect divine guidance.

→ Concluding Balanced and Just Framework.

Islam provides women with dignity, equality, and protection, integrating rights with responsibilities. Misconceptions are cultural, not religious. Quran and Sunnah establish moral, social, and legal standards. Proper understanding reveals Islam's enduring commitment to justice, equity, and social stability.