

People have become overly dependent on technology.

Topic Sentence

To start with, the increasing reliance on online political participation and electronic voting highlights people's over-dependency on technology. This is because electronic voting, which refers to the use of digital platforms for casting votes, is perceived as more efficient, time-saving and error free.

Linking Sentence

Supporting Argument + Evidence

However, in reality, this advancement demonstrates people's growing dependence on technology. Governments in the modern technological world have failed to conduct free and fair elections without the assistance of technology. For instance, in the 2023 parliamentary elections in Estonia, about 51% of voters cast their votes using the country's online voting platforms, such systems can ^{also} be seen in France, Germany and America elections systems. These optional linking sentence

examples illustrate how governments worldwide have embraced technology for electoral processes, reinforcing the argument that political participation is now heavily dependent on digital platforms.

Date: _____

Day: _____

concluding sentence.

In short, online political participation and electronic voting reflect people's global dependency on technology.