

Composition

1) What is the function of opium?

The function of opium is ~~a~~ Sedative. It assuages pain, lessens irritation and ~~intoxicates~~.

Opium teaches the poor the blessings of ^{there is no sense of this sentence} endures the greatest support to ~~the~~ the existing economic order with its cardinal feature.

2) What does Marx mean when he says that "religion is the opium of the people"?

Marx says that "religion is the opium of the people". Religion as "opium" was that religion eased physical and mental sufferings of this life by promising greater prosperity and happiness in the next world. He claimed that religion helps in Soothing the ~~irritation~~ irritation which inevitably exists between the opposing classes.

3) What according to Marx, is the scientific view of the nature of man?

According to Marx, religion is a scientific view of the nature of man. His social, political and even moral life was ^{unclear answer} said to be governed by the manner.

~~thus~~ Thus, things were produced at a certain point of history rather than by religious idealism.

1) What does the writer suggest when he says 'Perhaps he could not find time to study Islam?

The writer suggests ~~that he~~ perhaps that he could not find time to study Islam. ~~He claimed that~~ religion helps in soothing the irritation which inevitably exists between the opposing classes.

incorrect answer

repetition of the same sentence

1st sentence is incorrect in grammar and structure

answers are picked but not versatile or correct basic grammar is too weak not satisfactory 0/0

- What do the students gain by tutorial work?

COMPREHENSION EXERCISE 5

Q: Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.
"Religion is the opium of the people" is an oft-quoted saying of Karl Marx. The function of opium as is well-known is sedative. It assuages pain, lessens irritation and intoxicates. Thus, what Marx apparently meant when he described religion as "opium" was that religion eased physical and mental sufferings of this life by promising greater prosperity and happiness in the next world. He claimed that religion helps in soothing the irritation which inevitably exists between the opposing classes: it teaches the poor the blessings of enders the greatest support to the existing economic order with its cardinal feature, the exploitation of masses. In this view of history there can obviously be no place for a Transcendental Being. This was also supposed to be a scientific view of the nature of man. His social, political and even moral life was said to be governed by the manner in which things were produced at a certain point of history rather than by Faith in God or by religious idealism. Evidently, by religion Marx meant Christianity; perhaps he could not find time to study Islam.

Questions:

1. What is the function of opium?
2. What does Marx mean when he says that "religion is the opium of the people"?
3. What according to Marx, is the scientific view of the nature of man?
4. What does the writer suggest when he says "perhaps he could not find time to study Islam?"