My Job in an apple plant

Working in an Apple plant was the worst job I ever had. First of all, the work was physically hard. For ten hours a night, I took cartons that rolled down a metal track and stacked them onto wooden skids in a tractor trailer. Each carton contained twenty-five pounds of boiled apple juice, and they came down the track almost nonstop. The second bad feature of the job was the pay. I was getting the minimum wage at that time, $3.65 an hour, plus a quarter extra for working the night shift. I had to work over sixty hours a week to get decent take-home pay. Finally, I hated the working conditions. We were limited to two ten-minute breaks and an unpaid half hour for lunch. Most of my time was spent outside on the loading dock in a near zero-degree temperatures. I was very lonely on the job because I had no interests in common with the other truck loaders. I felt this isolation especially when the production line shut down for the night, and I spent two hours by myself.

cleaning the apple vats. The vats were an ugly place to be on a cold morning, and the job was a bitter one to have.

Activity

point : Working in an Apple plant is the worst job I ever had.

Reason 1 : Because it was tough and physically hard, and the working condition were dismal

a. loaded cartons onto skids for ten hours a night.

b. Each carton contained twelve heavy cans or bottles of apple juice. A carton shot down the track for every fifteen seconds. I once figured out that I was lifting an average of twelve tons of apple juice every night.

Reason 2 : I was paid the minimum wage of that time, two dollars an hour plus the minimum of a nickel extra for working the night shift.

a. Because of the low salary, I feel compelled to get as much overtime pay as possible. Everything over eight hours a night was time and a half. So I typically worked twelve hours a night.

b. Had to work sixty hours for decent take-home pay.

Reason 3: Even more than the low pay, what upset me about my apple plant was the working conditions. One humorless supervisor cared only about his production record for each night and tried to keep the assembly line moving at a breakneck pace.

a. Two ten-minutes' break and unpaid lunch.

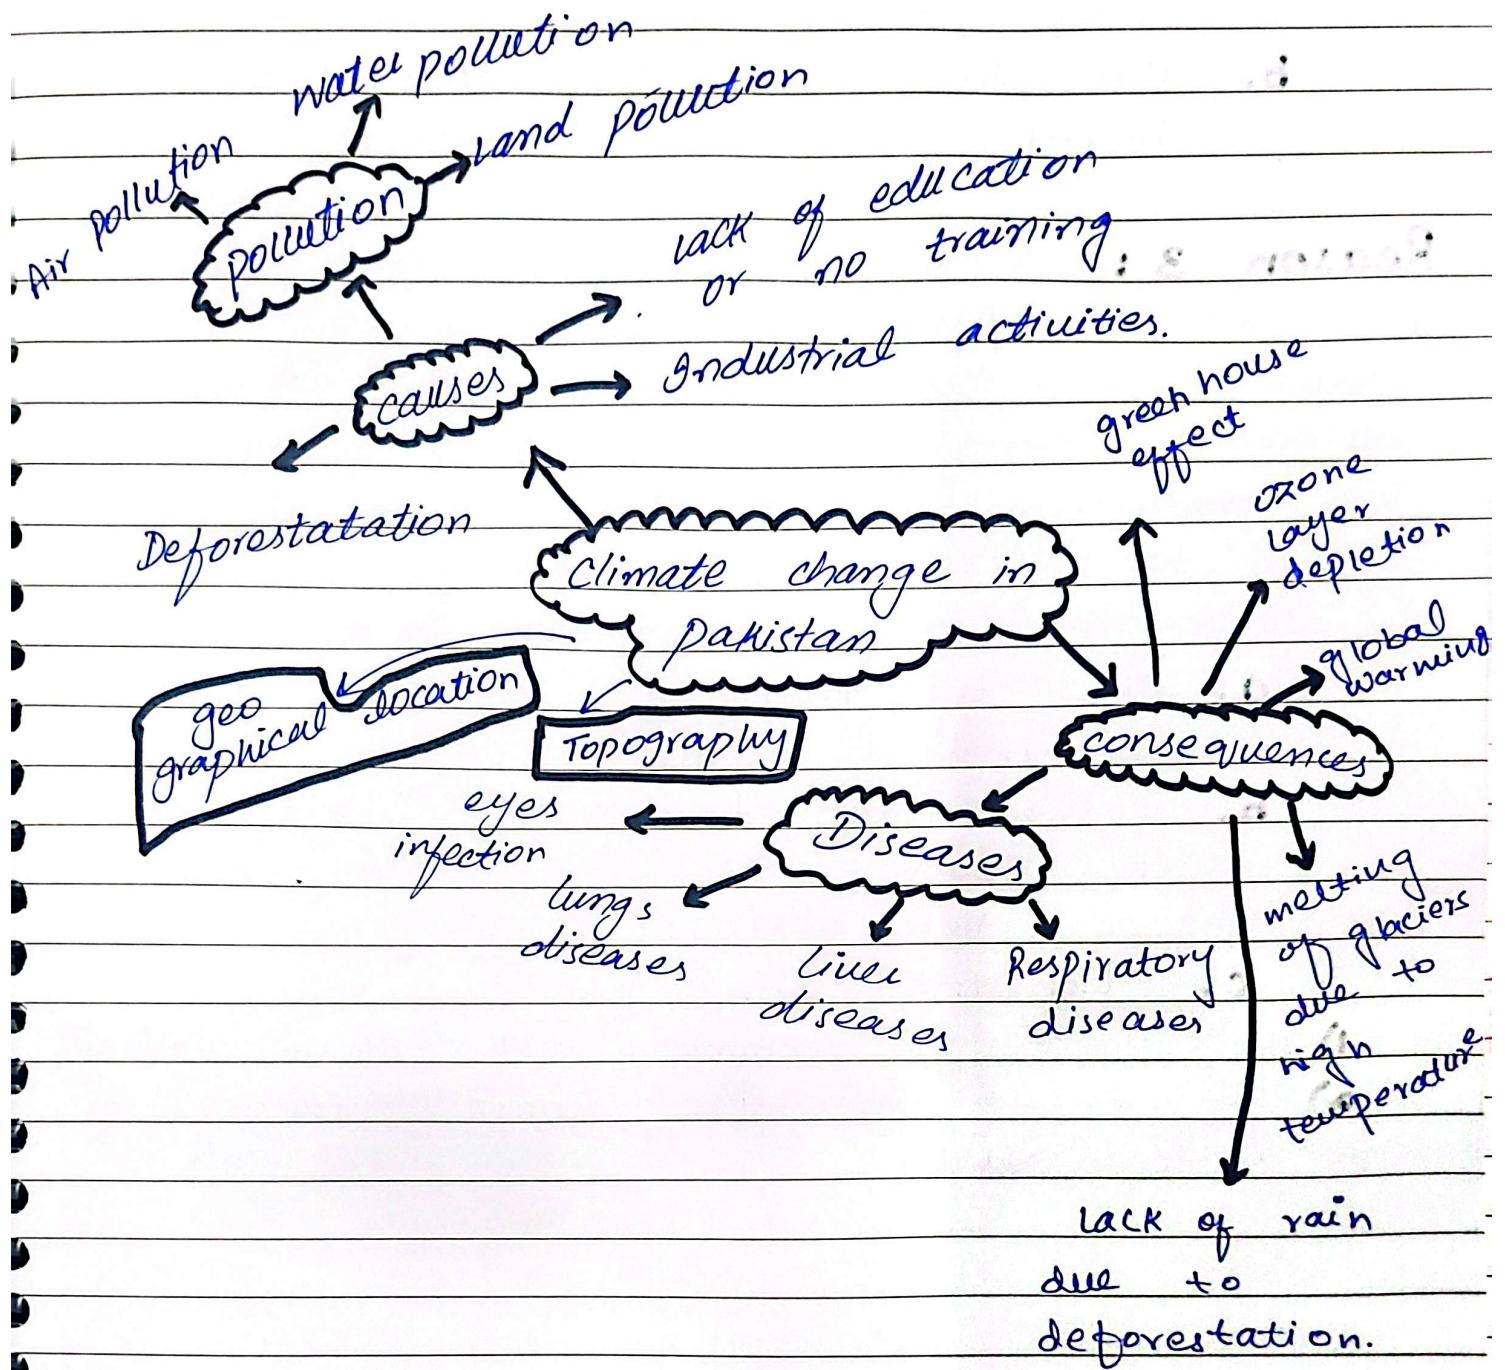

b. Most of my time was spent on truck loading dock in near zero-degree temperatures.

c. Loneliness on job

- 1) No interests in common with other workers.
- 2) By myself for two hours cleaning the apple vats
