Planting trees is necessary for the happiness of busy cities. Green parks can be a shelter for different species and also can balance the environment. These parks can also be a good place for social gathering and cultural exchange between different people. These green venues will also improve the air, ~~and~~ reduce the cities temperature and psychological prosperity. But, it requires cities management to bring equilibrium between infrastructure and greenery. By urban evaluation, the greenery preservation will become a duty. Foresting the cities is a vision for environmental protection.
