Moses (A.S) Challenged Paragon of his time instead of being the ruler. He tried to kill him during his escape, but drown in the water himself. Any person who afraid of insecurities becomes leader like paragon in his actions. He tries to suppress the people through the noise of arms and ambition. Similarly, Israel is suppressing palestine and Russia Ukraine to hand over from their genuine demands. They use the web of law for their own protection and justify their atrocities as india are committing in Kashmir. They suppress the freedom of speech as the slogan of "big brother is watching you" in 1984 novel. Contrary to it, the confident are silent because of their inner satisfaction. They challenge the existing status quo as done by Nelson Mandela, cannot be defeated through brutalities and atrocities. They are emotionally stable and the society are naturally influenced as like the role of cheap Seattle in 18th century. overall, the increase of afraid of reality rebellion to the existing status quo to be overthrown and make noises and atrocities to further silent the true picture of the society.

Conclusion

The historical evidences suggests that that the insecure always become loud to suppress and silent the confident one. They adopt harsh behavior and than hide this self within the web of law as done by india in Indian occupied Kashmir. They avoid the people to people contact and bane on the freedom of speech and allow external forces to protect his legitimacy. However, the genuine forces incase of silence always won against the atrocities and brutalities. Nelson mandela won after 27 years in prison, cheap Seattle protected his people and Saddam Hussain was laughing, during hearing his death sentence. They are emotionally will equip to face any criticism with confident and silence. The strategies to use the insecure more insecured and confident over louder through a strong local support, stand with the supremacy of constitution and rule of law and replaces persuasion over force.
