

Inability of man to maintain Balance between Personal Polarities

Onesided ego is the result of imbalance in man's personal polarity represented by psychoses and neuroses. Ego is collapsed in unconsciousness due to psychoses when the man is, entangled into goal structures. It shows strong emotional sickness. While, less severe emotional sickness is due to overpowerly use of thinking, feeling, intuiting or seeing. This domination of persona indicates one-sidedness of ego. In a nutshell, emotional disorder leads towards imbalance of (polities) polarities of life. On the other hand, neuroses is associated with peculiar behaviour. Also, neurotic norms vary from culture to culture which manifest that man is unable to hold balance between personal polarities.

Words in Passage: APPROX . 298

Words in Preci : APPROX . 104