i) Of believe in describedings.
i) It believes in decentralization: New public management theory believes that shitting authority from higher administration controllers to lower level helps to implement holicies more effectively. The decembralization also embances the responsiveness of public ogencies. In Paleistan the local government system is one of the prominent example of decentralization. Through local government system the developement projects can be effective and lower authorities can be more responsine do masses.

ii) flexibility in momagement: New public management theory believes in reducing the long hierarcy in bureaucracy to foster the application of policies. Besides, it provides managerial system with automorary de immorale and improve service delievery.
This factor can be applied in education sector of Palcistan, where teachers should be authorize to develope teaching methods and syllabus to ensure the equity in providing educátion dos every student.
iii) It stresses on public-primate partmership with minimum government intervention: According la new public management Theory The sole of government should be roll back in service providing agencies like health care. Government only provide oppositurity like giving land or funds to private sector and all the management should sest in the hands of prinale sector. In Palcistan many health-care projects like SEUT are success stories of public princile portnership with minimum government intervention.

it's application in Paleistan:
i) Human centric approach in organization: According to the theory organizations are wortal system where people's behaviour influences outcomes. Thesedore, government should docus on well being of employees. According do World Bank's report en public sectoris inefficiencies in Palciston, the low wages are one of the major causes of corruption and demoralization. If public sector employees are awarded with incentives on their performance The cossuption can be reduced and service delievery can be embance.
