

A great part of the mischiefs of the world arise from the words

The statement points to the fact that whatever wrong is being perpetrated and iniquities being prevailed in the world are outcomes of reckless use of words. People do not care when they speak. As a result, after this, they usually regret over their unfiltered talk. The world has suffered two deadly wars and faced many other devastating conflicts because of careless use of words. Similarly, various other bilateral and multilateral conflicts are also caused by words. When people are emotionally overwhelmed, they run short of reason. This situation proves to be catastrophic for everyone who is party to this situation. If people pre-plan make planned speeches, they can avoid this catastrophe. Hence, it is imperative for everyone that first weigh what they speak.

Indeed, unfiltered use of words wrecks havoc with in people's lives. For suppose, little misunderstanding and trivial disputes between a husband and a wife can separate them for life. Moreover, sometimes two tribes plunge into relentless conflict by virtue of improper use of words. It has been seen in many parts of the country that some conflicts even survive generations. They not only engulf parents and their offsprings but also spread to the whole tribes. Credit for these internecine conflicts goes to words. For-instance, the US would not have entered into second world war, if it had not intercepted the telegram from Germany to Mexico. which Hence, this is how words can destroy the world or spread mischief in it.

Nevertheless, people can save themselves from this tightrope of words usage. Only thing, they are supposed to do is to take stock of what they speak. If by chance they make a mistake while speaking or writing, they should apologize for it instantly. Adopting humility is a fine antidote to overcome this challenge. As in diplomatic missions, diplomats make guarded speeches, because they know how a little mistake while speaking can invite outrage. Like countries consider everything before crafting their foreign policies, people should pre-plan their speeches so that no one ask them for explanations. Hence, making calculated speeches is a way forward for this conundrum.

Overall, words have a major role in creating unpleasant environment in the world. Impromptu and adhoc speeches disturb peace. The speakers in such conditions use their intellect to emotional overwhelming. Consequently, it <sup>brings</sup> forth negativity, hatred and mischief in the world.
