

The decline of American Global leadership under Trump

Since World War II, American leadership has been thrived on cooperation, not force. American's lead international power, built on alliances and economic interdependency but under the supervision of Trump, American system is collapsing. American's unilateral policies thought that ^{they} can rule over through power and cruelty, without compliances. But this strategic approach of Trump is fading American's Global leadership.

Trump's foreign policy is based on two beliefs: the other nations have no will, they have to submit before U.S. demands and the other one is that U.S. power doesn't need any allies compliance. Trump is ignoring the history that teach us, without cooperation America is nothing but a lonely power. For instance, he can not made sanctions on Iran without mutual agreement of Europe, China and Russia. Meanwhile, technological restrictions in China can not proceed without compliance of Japanese.

Trump's ignorance of multilateralism are new pushing allies to search for an alternative. Japan and South Korea that ~~were~~ traditionally depend on America, are now negotiating trilateral agreement with China. Despite of this, Trump's rigid fiscal policies; strong debt, tariffs also losing the allies trust and dependency. If this remain the same, U.S market will decline and the American global power.
