The Dictatorship Philosophy of Francium

The author believes in democracy but he developed The D.H Lawrence philosophy of Francium that the working men were suitable to elect governor. He wanted to be Julius Caesar so, he never thought about reality. He wanted how people should accept truth rather than remain multitude. But if he put his philosophy into book it might consider lie and to except publically would risky. So, he changed his subject instead of solution. Then, author understands his aimed not to make world better but it was self talk. If somebody listen this would better but before its application one must understand the mindset of the person. This our lesson was preached through Francit dictatorship.
