

is gender equality a myth?

Thesis statement:

Gender equality is a myth. on the contrary, some people view it as a reality. However gender equality is a myth because of less representation of women in politics, low education rate and little mainstreaming.

Introduction:

"We can not all succeed when half of us are held back" (Malala yousafzai)

women and men are the two wheels of one vehicle but, even in that modern age women are not treated equal to men. However some people believe that women equality is a reality. Whereas, there are some factors which indicates that gender equality as a myth. These are like less representation of women in politics, low literacy rate, lesser mainstreaming domestic violence etc. This essay argues that gender equality is not a reality.

- Outline: Is Gender equality a fact?
- (i) Less participation in politics
 - (ii) Higher illiteracy rate in women
 - (iii) Economically dependent on other gender.
 - (iv) Domestic violence against women
 - (v) Harassment and molestation
 - (vi) Lack of autonomy
 - (vii) Rare job opportunities for women

(B) How gender equality is a fact:

- (A) Growing literacy rate in women
- (B) women participation in politics
- (C) improved financial position
- (D) mainstreaming of women

Argument 1

Less participation of women in politics shows that gender equality is a myth. participation in politics as a condition in which individual takes part in politics as a candidate or voter. women participation in politics as a phenomenon in which women take part in politics as candidate or voter. In Pakistan very less number of women participate in politics. For instance even today in Dir lower, or Dir upper districts of Pakistan women are not allowed to cast their votes. Hence the less representation of women in politics indicates that gender equality is a myth.
