

An old lady, Embankment railway station of Margaret, visits the London everyday just to listen to the announcement of "mind the gap" in her deceased husband Oswald Lawrence's voice. The announcement got recorded in 1970s and Margaret only listens to feel closer to her deceased husband, Oswald. In 2012, when the announcement was <sup>replaced with an</sup> ~~converted~~ into electronic recording, Margaret continued transport for London. When the organization came to know about her feelings, so it replaced the <sup>electronic</sup> announcement ~~in~~ <sup>on the railway station</sup> with her husband's ~~one~~ <sup>real</sup> voice. Now ~~everyday~~ <sup>there</sup>, everyone, announcement is heard <sup>there</sup> in the loving voice.
