I think -----
----- fact.

Burdened Teachers Neglected Children

The author narrated that our modern educationalists did not like the interfering company of children but if they want they should enjoy their company as well. If some have liking for children, they will show a good response towards them.

Today, teachers are over-burdenized due to their responsibilities and have no time for children. Education is not a whole profession for them, they have other tasks as well. Teachers have family and home, due to tough daily schedule fatigue is quite common. That's why there is no affection for children. Some students show good response while some are naughty to be tackled. Teachers are somehow not responsible because educational system burdenized them. That's why affection is lost and children are neglected in different manners.
