

Precis

The character of a man should be like that of a tree which itself stands in the scorching heat but benefits others from its fruits. Such men live their lives for the benefits of others without demanding any appraisal. A life lived for the benefits of others is remembered eternally in the ~~hearts~~ hearts of others, and a life lived selfishly for one self is like that of the lives of cows and dogs.

Title: character of a good man

Word count

Originals 242

Precis 73