

Q:1 Despite legal framework against it, various forms of gender-based violence (GBV) remain pervasive in Pakistan. Beyond legal framework, what socio-cultural and systemic changes are necessary to address the root causes of GBV and foster a culture of safety and respect for all genders?

Answer

1) Introduction:

Gender-based violence is manifestation of historically asymmetrical power distribution of dominance between man and women. Pakistan is among those countries who always remain at the verge of gender-based violence. Despite of legal framework, various forms of gender-based violence such as: Domestic violence, Structural violence, Economic violence, Psychological violence still pervasive in Pakistan. In order to get rid of this, socio-cultural and systemic changes such as eradication of patriarchy; enforcement of perfect laws; Political participation of women are needed. As Nelson Mandela nicely said:

Freedom cannot be achieved unless women have been emancipated from all kind of obsession.

2) Overview of Gender-based violence (GBV) in Pakistan

According to the United Nation, Gender-based violence is an act of any physical and mental obsession against any type of gender, is consider as crime.

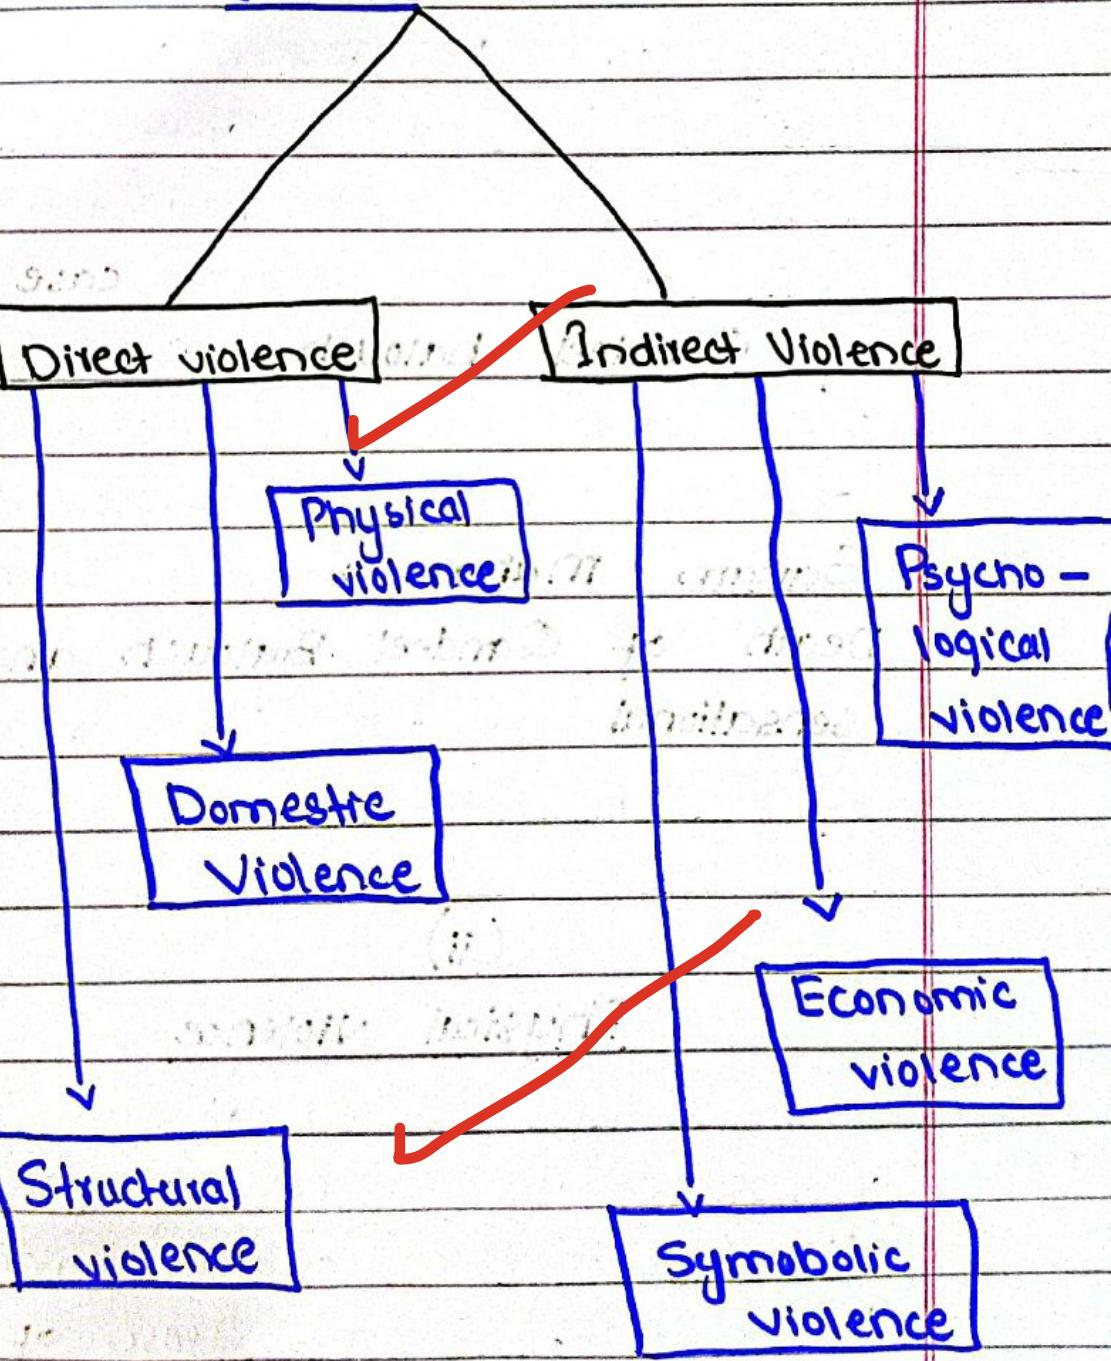

In Pakistan, gender-based violence is manifestation of historically imbalance distribution of power between men and women.

Since the inception, women in Pakistan have faced gender-based violence. According to report:

Pakistan stands at last in gender-parity report.

3) Types of gender-based violence

4) Various forms of Gender-based violence in Pakistan

(i)

Domestic Violence

In Pakistan, domestic violence is mostly faced by women. In addition to that, domestic violence faces by both men and women. For instance, case of Qandeel Balouch - Qandeel was famous model. She was assassinated by her brother.

Sanam Mahay in her book Death of Qandeel Balouch and sensational, elucidated the domestic violence in Pakistan.

(ii)

Physical violence

Since the inception, physical violence has emerged as full-fledged violence against gender. For instance, famous case of Naheed Malakudum of physical violence. These cases / put light on the fact violence happens every where in society.

(iii)

Economic Violence

In Pakistan, mostly women are independent on their male partner economically because society like Pakistan in which patriarchy still exists. So, women mostly dependent on fathers, brothers and even husband. Women usually do un-paid labour work in homes.

(iv)

Psychological Violence

Pakistani being, versatile in every aspect, has sown the seed of Psychological violence in its society. Mostly women face psychological violence from their intimate partner. Aqish Khan has elaborated psychological violence in book "Silent Voices, Untold stories. Aqim Khan has put light on psychological violence in most societies of Pakistan.

5) Legal framework against Gender-based violence

6) Socio-cultural changes ~ necessarily to address root causes of GBV and foster a culture of safety and respect

(i)

Political Participation

There must be equal political participation of both women and men. Whenever this happens, it will eventually eradicate root causes of gender-based violence. For example, Rwanda has equal political participation.

(ii)

Economic independence

In Pakistan, women, mostly economically dependent on their partners, to fulfill their needs. Both men and women have to be economically independent of each other to get rid of gender-based violence and foster a sense of safety and respect.

add and highlight references/examples against these arguments.

(iii) (ii)

Eradication of Patriarchy

Pakistan in order to foster sense of equality, safety and safety, it is necessary to eradicate the patriarchy system from society. It will reduces the gender-based violence.

7) Systemic changes ~ necessary to address root causes of GBV and foster a culture of safety and respect
(i)

Quotas for Women

It is necessary for Pakistan to have special quota for women in the institution.

It eventually reduces the gender-based violence. General Musharraf gave 10% quota to women in CSS.

(ii) (iii)

Political Representation

Women should leave political representation in both upper house and lower to compete with men in every aspect to eradicate gender based violence and foster culture of safety and respect.

(iii)

Enforcement of Laws

Parliament fails to enforce gender-based violence laws and in that case it is practical to eradicate all forms of gender-based violence. For instance, Luxembourg has almost zero gender based violence, it is due to proper enforcement and practical use of laws.

8) Conclusion:

Patriarchy being rich in every aspect has also faced gender-based violence.

It is due to patriarchy, lack of political representation and economic dependence.

Consequently, it was physical, domestic, structural, symbolic violence. However, socio-cultural and systemic changes are recommended.

To foster culture of safety and respect for all genders.

12

good attempt!!!

Q:2 Critically assess the impact of globalisation on women's live in Pakistan, distinguishing between its potential for empowerment and its role in perpetuating new forms of gender inequality and exploitation. What policy interventions are necessary to mitigate effects and maximize positive ones?

Answer:

1) Introductory Remarks:

It is rightly said that:

World is a global village.

Its genesis is that everyone is so-connected that if anything occurs in one country then it has spill-over effect on other country. So, Pakistan has also faced spill-over effect of globalisation. Furthermore, it has impacted Pakistan in both positively and negatively. Positive aspect is potential for empowerment through different ways; and negatively, it has perpetuated the new forms of gender inequality. However, through pragmatic policy framework, negative effects of globalisation reduces by maximizing the positive ones.

2) Overview of Globalisation

During the 17th and 18th century, world has faced new sort of waves. The waves are french revolution and technological revolution. These revolutions gave world a new direction to on and have spill-over effects on its surrounding. Consequently, Pakistan also caught fire of globalisation and has adopted the technological revolution with it.

3) Impacts of globalisation on lives of women in Pakistan for its potential for empowerment
(i)

Mainstreaming in Politics

The impacts of globalisation led way to main stream in politics for women of Pakistan. For instance, at the independence only two seats in government. Later, it increased to 33 seats. So, it has impacted positively on women of Pakistan.

(ii)

Entrance in Work place

Secondly, impacts of globalisation has opened gateway to enter in workplace where women do paid work and their work is praised. According to National Commission on status of women, about 27.3% of women are in workplace.

(iii)

Legal framework for protection of women.

By entering in workplace and mainstreaming in Politics.

Another impact of globalisation on women is that it is created fertile ground for women to form legal framework for their protection. Such as, Anti-harrasement act and Anti-harrasement at workplace and strict policy led women to feel safer. ~~harrasement~~

4) Impacts of globalisation on lives of women in Pakistan for perpetuating new forms of gender inequality.

(i)

Gendered Wage Disparity

It has created gendered wages disparity in Pakistan where are paid low (a) compare to men. It eventually has negative impact of globalisation on women.

(ii)

Objectification of women

Due to the impacts of globalisation, women are objectified in diaries, advertisement, and film industries. It has eventually created new forms of gender inequality in Pakistan.

(iii)

Harassment and Slandering

Due to the impacts of globalisation, women face harassment and slandering in their workplace. Hence, it has new form of gender inequality in Pakistan which eventually perpetuates negative image with society.

5) Pragmatic ways to mitigate negative effects on Globalisation on women and to maximize positive effects

(i)

Enforcement of laws

Palistion needs to enforce the perfect laws which reduces news of gender inequality due to the negative impacts of globalisation on women. Therefore, enforcement and making practical use of law to maximize positive.

(ii)

Eradication of Gender division of labour

Palistion has to eradicate the gender division of labour. It will eventually reduces gender wage disparity. Betty Friedan has said it rightly:

Women in work force is necessity.

(iii)

Reduction of gendering of expression of Gender

Palciston being versatile has to reduce the gendering of expression of gender. Like, masculine with man, and feminine with women. In other ways, soft being women and hard being man.

(iv)

Strengthen Institutes ~

to uphold gender equality

Palciston should strengthen its institutes to prompt and uphold gender equality with institutes. It will foster sense of inequality within both men and women. It will reduce new forms of gender inequality due to globalisation.

(iii)

Policy framework to tackle effects of globalisation and maximise positive

6) Concluding Remarks:

Globalisation is an phenomenon which has ever-lasting impacts and spill-over effects on its surroundings. So, Pakistan has also suffered both positive and negative impacts of globalisation. Therefore, pragmatic framework is recommended to mitigate negative effects and maximize women's need of now in Pakistan. Therefore, Betty Frieden has rightly said:

Women's right to be in workplace is not privilege, but its necessity.

---

---

Q:04

the concept of 'gender-responsive budgeting' is gaining traction. Explain what gender-responsive budgeting entails and discuss its potential to promote gender equality in resources allocation and public service delivery in Pakistan. What are challenges to its effective implementation?

Answer

1)

Introduction:

Gender-responsive budgeting means budgeting on basis of gender. It means allocation to all those types of gender which it includes. It includes, men, women, Queer and transgender.

Additionally, gender-responsive budgeting will promote equality through equal sharing of resources, equal pays. However, challenges to implement gender-responsive budgeting is patriarchy.

High male dominance in society and many others. After this

2) Deconceptualizing the term ~ Gender-Responsive Budgeting

The term gender-responsive budgeting manifests that fiscal year budgeting on basis of gender. Gender is an umbrella term which get together following forms:

Male, female, Queer, Binary and transgender. It's gonna be best to enrich all those types of gender through gender-responsive budgeting. It is rightly said in context that,

Envision of a just and compassionate society, in which freedom flourishes.

3) Potential of Gender-based responsive budgeting to promote gender equality in resource allocation and public service delivery in Pakistan

(i)

Resource allocation on basis of gender

~ foster equality

If this Gender-based responsive budgeting happens in Pakistan, it eventually leads to allocation of resources on bases of population of gender.

It will eventually foster equality.

(ii)

Mainstreaming of different genders ~ lead to stability

Through gender-based responsive budgeting, it mainstreams the different genders and it leads to stability.

(iii)

Economic Independence ~ Empowerment of gender

Gender responsive budgeting will leads to the economic independence and eventually leads to the empowerment of gender. And, society like Pakistan will be just and compassionate in which freedom flourishes.

(iv)

Reduces Socio-cultural notions — promotes equality

With this Gender responsive budgeting will reduces the notions of socio-cultural dependence. It's gonna increase breathing space for other gender in Pakistan to adopt and promote equality.

Resource allocation concerned for gender equality to empowerment

ability

No concept of blue and pink taxes

Potentials of Gender-Responsive Budgeting to promote equality influence of information

Mainstreaming of gender equality

Economic Independence ~ Empowerment

u) Challenges in the way of effective implementation of Gender-Responsive Budgeting

(i)

Male dominant

Society ~ Patriarchy

Pakistan being a Patriarchy society, never go ahead for effective implementation of gender-responsive budgeting.

J.S. Mills rightly said:

"All men keep all women in state of fear!"

(ii)

Low political representation of other gender

In male dominant society, like Pakistan where other genders has low/zero political representation in upper house and lower house of Pakistan. Hence, it is hindrance towards implementation of gender-responsive budgeting.

(iii)

Anti-Narratives against Gender

In societies like Pakistan where socio-cultural notions are strong enough to build an anti-narrative against gender which eventually creates obstacles in way to effective implementation of gender-based budgeting.

(iv)

Bi-faciation of Genders

Pakistan is bi-faciated society which is only divided into men and women. So, it really hard enough for Pakistan to lead to the effective implementation of gender-responsive budgeting.

5) Conclusion:

Gender - responsive budgeting means resource allocation on basis of gender. Gender - responsive budgeting will promote equality through economic independence, mainstreaming. However, Pakistan has faced challenges to implement effective gender - responsive budgeting because being male - dominant society, patriarchy exists and socio-cultural challenges.