In Northern European countries, the cold weather is beneficial. As cold climate generate energy as an obstacle. When obstacles are invincible, energy does not produce. If no resistance, no exercise. For energy will be done. But striving against difficulties turns in good results. Similarly cold weather makes a person senseless while hot encourages and moderate keeps healthy. In moderately cold, performing strenuous duties still face difficulties. Eventually he works hard for food to get energy. Man is different everywhere. But always in need of better clothes, comfortability, health, and food. A bit support can assure sustainable life without much efforts. Because there is a difference ~~between~~ human nature in regions and climates.
