

Climate Change in Pakistan: Causes & Consequences

Outline

1- Introduction

a) Hook

b) Background (definition and overview)

c) Thesis Statement

This essay focuses on the common causes of climate changes in Pakistan and their substantial consequences while emphasizing the urgent need for coping measures.

2- Main Body

a) Causes of climate change in Pakistan

i) Uncontrolled urbanization

ii) Rapidly increasing population rate and low resources

iii) Deforestation

iv) Smoke and gases emissions from vehicles & factories

v) Improper waste management and no enforcement by government authorities

b) consequences

i) Rising poverty rate and economic stress

ii) Food security

iii) Increase in health problems

iv) Shortage of Food

v) Extreme changes in weather (i.e. increasing heatwaves)

vi) Melting of Glaciers.

c) Recommended Measures

i) Reforestation

ii) Proper government level climate management reforms.

iii) Public awareness strategies

iv) Recycling and separation of waste according to recycling ability.

3- Conclusion:

i) Restatement of thesis

ii) Summary of key points.

ESSAY

Ex: US President Barack Obama once addressed the importance of climate change in his statement, "We are the first generation to feel the impact of climate change and the last generation that can do something about it." This statement clearly tells us about the severity of the consequences of climate change and also the urgent need to take necessary measures. Climate change has become an undeniable and urgent matter of attention globally, especially for a developing country like Pakistan. Climate change is imposing serious threats to health, food security, water availability and economy due to rising temperatures, melting glaciers, extreme deforestation and frequent natural disasters. Although, Pakistan is among the ~~countries~~ least contributing countries to the greenhouse gas emission but still is among the top 10 countries facing the dire consequences of climate change. This essay focuses on the primary causes of climate changes in Pakistan and their substantial consequences while emphasizing the urgent need for coping measures.