Social media as a chaos machine

While waiting in a line for newspaper in front of Gutanberg printing press, no one had ever imagined a medium of communication that could allow them to read and express their ideas to the entire world within seconds. Social media in 21st century has done this wonder. As the river flows it also carries mud, social media has also brought chaos to the world in various forms like misinformation and propaganda. The chaos of social media is spreaded from politics to psychology. Social media is designed in such a way that engages the audience by providing them with instant happiness. The algorithms of social media keep the user in a filter bubble which leads to the consolidation of his views and stereotypes. Therefore, it is necessary to address the issues by double checking the information before sharing it at individual level. Governments should also impose strict regulations to protect the citizens from such chaos spreaded by social media. This chaos of Zuckerberg is far greater than the chaos ever imagined by Gutenberg.
