Knowledge is virtue

The phrase "knowledge is virtue" means that once an individual understands, the difference between good and bad through his knowledge, they are more likely to act virtuously because he knows the value of honesty, kindness and justice, which shapes his actions This idea was supported by Greek Philosopher Socrates, who believed that no one does woong knowingly. Gaining knowledge is not just about success but also for becoming a better human being. People commit crime only, because they are ignorant of what is good. Teaching people what is good or bad will definitly make them better. It shows the importance of education which is not only for jobs, but for becoming a moral person. A knowledgable person who does not act virtuously lacks true wisdom. Thus knowledge is not just about information. It is the foundation of moral character and virtuous living.
