

Punjab: Efforts to curb terrorism.

Punjab administration has taken the action to ban 84 groups. These groups vary from being sectarian armed groups to separatists based on nation driven by their ethnicity. The authorities have banned funding them under Anti-Terrorism Act, 1997. Banning groups amidst Ramadan is to stop their fundings that escalate in this month through zakat and charity. The existence of these terrorist groups since Musharat era under different names and still not abolished is a matter of concern. The state deals some small and peaceful groups iron handedly while some other violent and massive ones with fragility. There is a need of awareness across the society and efforts can be made to bring radicalized beings on track to stop militant violence. This violence should first be addressed on field to save
