

The writer struggled to choose a vacation tour, because he wanted to visit an unusual place. Then his friend called him and suggested him to go to Cherokee, upon which he agreed, and then both went there. Upon reaching there, they visited a Qualla Boundary, a town with natural beauty. They also visited gift shop filled with locally made products. Where they were welcomed by a George a shopowner. who also speaks a fluent English, he also invited them for a lunch, ~~and~~ ^{where} he told them a story about his means of income during peak-season and off-season. And in last they visited ~~museum~~ museum where they find ~~many~~ various cultural things. On his return the author missed the place looked forward to visiting another place like that.

(Woods - 125)

Title

A trip to Cherokee