

Topic. "Gender equality: A popular Slogan."

Outline

I. Introduction.

- A quote by Kofi Annan, Secretary General of the UN, about women.
- Women's miserable conditions made the slogan popular.
- Implications of women's equality and the way forward.

II. The wrecked conditions of women made the slogan popular.

A) Political periphery

- Women in Politics: the UN 2023 Gender Gap Report.
- The case study of the USA.

B) Economic inequality

- The UN Gender Gap Report 2023
- The UNICEF 2023 report about women

C) Educational disparity of girls

- The UN Gender Gap Report 2023

- UNICEF 2023 Report about girl's education.

D) Security hurdles of women

- The increasing femicide cases
- High rape cases
- Domestic violence

E) The looming child marriages

- The UN Report about girls in South Asia.
- The UNICEF Report 2023 about child marriages

III. The positive implications of empowered women on a country.

A) Political stability

- The viewpoint of feminists
- Bangladesh: A case study

B) Economic prosperity

- A quote by Michael Obama about women's empowerment

- The economies of top countries in Gender Gap Report.

c) Peaceful societies

- High literacy rate
- A child positive development.

d) Environmental protection

- Low burning in households
- Prevention of water pollution.

IV. Gender transformation can be achieved through practical steps.

A) An adequate political representation

- The case study of Benazir Butto about gender equality.

B) Materialised laws regarding women's protection

- ^{Saudi Arabia} Iran: A case study
- Personal information protection

C) Equal educational and jobs opportunities.

- Michelle Bachelet, former president of Chile, perspective about women.
- India : A case study

D) Awareness programmes about women's equal rights

- A opinion by Simon De Beauvoir in her book "The Second Sex"

V. Conclusion

"Gender equality is more than a goal in itself. It is a precondition for meeting the challenge of reducing poverty, promoting sustainable development and building governance."

a quote by Kofi Annan, Secretary General of the UN, upholding the importance of gender equality for achieving prosperity. Since early times, women's equal rights have been denied. However, in the nineteenth century, the slogan of gender equality echoed for the first time. Since then, owing to political, economic, educational and social parties, the slogan of gender equality has been popular.

Developed women are assets who can lead a country to political and financial stability. ~~Gender parity can be achieved through proper practical steps~~ Besides, social prosperity and environmental safety would be the fate of the country where women have equal rights. Gender parity can be achieved through proper practical steps in which women have an adequate political representation along with women-friendly laws. Moreover, their educational and financial development would abridge the gender gap. Furthermore, mass-level awareness programmes are also advisable for gender equality. Indeed, gender equality has made progress, but some practical steps would accelerate gender parity.