Letters between relatives and friends are called personal letters. The most important thing in such letters is, the content - don't begin with a heckneyed phrase like, "I was delighted to get your letter," "received your letter," or "I have often thought of writing to you." Use a vigorous, clear, chatty style.

That familiarity produces neglect, has been long observed the effect of all external objects: however great or splendid, ceases with familiarity, the courtier stares without emotion in the royal presence. The music trembles under his foot, the beauties of the spring with little attention to their fragrance, and the inhabitant of the coast darts his eyes upon the immense diffusion of water without awe, wonder or terror.
