

Precis 2000

Organizational objectives carry by coordination.

Every organization should satisfy the humans to fulfil their demands. Therefore, The appropriate objectives of an organizations must be preceded by struggle of mankind. Organizations conduct debates and learning programmes to check the masses needs. It develops and exchanges utilities and system acts. More Purposeful objects provide success and objectives to every organization. These acts are physical and provides employment to humans. Thus utility is created through distribution process and make effective cooperative system of an organization. Before the industrial revolution, organizations had simple objectives and single decision maker, but today organizations have multiple objectives and make decision-makers. However, ^{organizational} objectives provides efficiency and satisfaction. Therefore, efficiency is the result of utilities from the contributors. Therefore, organizational management process represent the objectives. Thus, Contributors collective group maintain the organizational activities.