Title: Questioning liberty in education

Precis:

There are three different school of thoughts on the idea of liberty in education. Each have their own understanding but the one that says that freedom should guarantee moral perfection is but a faulty one. Their belief is solely ^{based on} using education for growth than learning. The author believes if that would have been the case, there would be no communities. Education provides method for cooperation which ultimately yields success for community development. It would not have been resulted only from spontaneous actions. Thus, Education must be used for training children through techniques than leaving them on their own.
