

Balancing Human Development and Environment

Urban city parks are avenues providing refuge from the chaos of cities. They serve as avenues for relaxation and recreation while also providing habitat to flora and fauna. These parks also foster community bonds by providing spaces for community gathering. Moreover, the trees within these spaces help mitigate climate crisis. ~~The problem,~~ ^{the problem,} however, lies in ensuring a balance between rapid urbanization and preservation of natural parks. This, therefore, necessitates sustainable urban planning. The goal is to ensure ~~city~~ ^{peaceful} coexistence of human progress and environment by ~~and~~ seamlessly integrating nature in cities.
