complex world that we are living in, everyone is facing challenging issues ~~and~~ and trying to solve them within their capacity. ~~Although~~ Although, not everyone succeed in it and frustration can be seen by their actions. Does not matter, if the person is jobless or well established businessman, problems do not stop even if we die. Everyone must understand each other to know what they are going through; only then it can be found out whether the person is a hero or a villain.

Avengers: Endgame, a movie released in 2019, had a villain named Thanos. He was showed as a villain because he wanted to reduce the population of the entire universe by using his super powers. Heroes, which ~~are~~ were avengers, trying to stop him, as vanishing people ~~were~~ was not as per avengers. Now, the world is about to enter 2026 and the whole system is collapsing, including economical, infrastructure, and political. The world can only sustain 1.5 to 3 billion people with all the natural resources the world has. Thanos was trying to maintain the balance. He was not a villain.

Many people still think that the people of East Pakistan, now Bangladesh, were rebellious for no reason. After the independence of Pakistan in 1947, West Pakistan did not give even the basic human rights to East Pakistan. Although, East Pakistan were doing the major exports and generating revenue but ~~and~~ that money was only invested in West Pakistan. Further, operation Search light was the final nail in the coffin. Were they villain or they got independence from the villains.

Another misunderstood case of a Balochi woman, Shari Baloch, mother of 2, well educated and a literate person. She did a suicide attack which killed couple of Chinese officials. Looks like she is a villain. She did it because Balochistan is continuously oppressed by the Pakistani State. Now, Balochistan has practically become a no-go area because of terrorism. People are so frustrated that a mother of two, gave her life to highlight the issues of Balochistan.

In Pakistani society, it is often seen that ^{young} boys are not comfortable talking with their dad. The father is always angry, shouting, and talking about his economic problems. As these boys grow older and enter the practice world, now they understand the challenges their father was facing. Office politics, road traffic, mobile snatching, roads are flooded with rain water, and etc. They are not villain, they are frustrated as they are surrounded by problems.

Government of Pakistan
often criticize that people do smuggling on the borders of KPK and Balochistan. Unfortunately, Government did not thought why is it happening. People have no other way of earning money there. It is their only source.
If Government with Army can create and maintain peace situation, jobs will be created and the people would definitely prefer respectful and safe jobs. They will not be called villains then.

Europeans complaining about people, ^{especially Asylum} illegally entering Europe through Dunki and finding Asylum. Their complain is absolutely right, but we also must understand ~~the~~ why people are risking their lives to flee their home country. Poor financial conditions, injustice, rape, killing, and what not. They are just trying to find a better home for their country.

Majority Israeli Nationals think that the killing of the people of Gaza is crossed as they are just trying to end Hamas. They think they are heroes. The views of Israeli people were different when Adolf Hitler did Genocide of Jews in concentration camps.

Nuclear attacks on Hiroshima, Nagasaki by USA during the world war II were solely an action of self defence. The people of Japan went to the extreme point of blindly giving their lives and following their King's order. The Nuclear attacks saved many American lives and stopped further escalation. They were heroes

In 1971, USA President Richard Nixon took the dollar off the gold standard. Many viewed it as ~~some~~ unethical and very bad for the world economy. He did good for America and the people of America.

The last days of Gaddafi were very painful. People brutally killed him. Looks like, people are the villain; they killed an old man. But before that Gaddafi was responsible for mass killings, public execution, and murders on ethnicity. People were taking revenge for what Gaddafi did.

often Parents think that their children just wasting time on the internet. Just watching porn or playing games. Parents did not see the positive and impactful side of the internet and social media.

A multi National Pakistani perfume brand "Scents N stories" took off on Social Media and is worth now Billions of Rupees. Another example, 4 boys started a software house in Karachi, named "Geeks of Kolachi" and is generating revenue of about 1 million US dollars a month. ~~The~~ Internet is not the villain, it is here to serve.

Muslims praying on the streets of Europe. It feels like a peaceful and good action.

Europeans are against it. They are looking like the villains.

~~But If~~ ~~th~~ If someone think logically, Europeans are right; streets are not a place to do religious activities. They are the heroes here.

People intend to judge others quickly. They quickly make opinions and it sits within their unconscious mind. Some people are so rigid that they can not even listen to an opposing argument of their Hero. Supporters of ~~B~~ political parties, Donald Trump and Religious group of people are few example of that. It takes literacy^{and} critical thinking ~~and~~ to understand both sides of the situation. Unfortunately, most of the world is illiterate.

The world lacks critical thinking. People do not want to question because it disrupts their quickly built view of hero or villain. Realities can be different from the old built perception. People must see both sides of the coin to understand the complete picture, not just the side of coin that we like. The world can be a better place if we grow some patience, ~~and~~ follow rule of law, and respect each other's boundary.
