

LMS-ID: 40504-Waleeja Saleem - 073

Name: Waleeja Saleem
Batch: RWP UB-73

Delayed marriages: Causes & Consequences

Outlines

1. Introduction:

Attention Grabber
General statement

Thesis Statement: Nowadays society face delayed marriages because of economic instability, pursuit of higher education and careers, social norms and expectations, globalization and urbanization, and fear of commitment. However, delayed marriages leave some positive and negative consequences on societies such as positive consequences are financial independence, maturity & stability, and better decision making in spouse selection. While negative consequences are sexual frustration, declining fertility, psychological stress and loneliness.

2. Causes of Delayed Marriages.

1. Economic instability

1.1 poverty

1.2 unemployment.

2. Pursuit of Higher education and career

2.1 Youth Prioritizing higher studies and professional stability

3. Social norms and Expectations

3.1 Dowry practices

3.2 Caste restrictions

4. Globalization & Urbanization

4.1 Influence of western life style and Individualism

5. Fear of Commitment

5.1 Rising divorce rates

5.2 Broken families.

3 Consequences of Delayed Marriage.

A. Positive Consequences

1. Financial Independence
2. Maturity & Stability
3. Better decision making in spouse selection

B. Negative Consequences

1. Sexual Frustration
2. Declining fertility
3. Psychological Stress and Loneliness.

4. Conclusion

Essay:

Marriage is not just about two individuals, it is about the balance of society. Marriage is considered one of the most significant social institution, forming the foundation of family and ensuring the continuity of generation. Traditionally, marriage took place at very young age, but in the modern world the phenomenon of delayed marriage has been increasingly common. This trend is not only seen in one culture or society but observable across the globe particularly in urban & educated population. While in rural areas there is still many present the concept of childhood marriage which can also leave impact on societies. Delayed marriage is the result of socio-cultural factors. Nowadays societies faced delayed marriages because of economic instability, pursuit of higher education and career, social norms and expectations, globalization & urbanization, and fear of commitments.

However delayed marriages have Some positive and negative consequences on societies. Such as positive consequences are financial independence, maturity and stability, and better decision making in spouse selection.
While negative consequences are sexual frustration, declining fertility, and psychological stress and loneliness.