

Nothing sharpens a people's wits like poverty. Hence many of the greatest people have originally been poor. Poverty often purifies and braces a people's morals. To spirited people, difficult tasks are usually the most delightful ones. If we may rely upon the testimony of history, people are brave, truthful, and magnanimous not in proportion to their wealth, but to their smallness of means. And the best are often the poorest – always supposing that they have sufficient to meet their temporal wants. As is said, "God has created poverty but He has not created misery". And there is certainly a great difference between the two. While honest poverty is honourable, misery is humiliating, in as much as the latter is for the most part the result of misconduct and often of idleness. Poverty is no disgrace to him who can put up with it, but he who finds the beggar's staff get warm in his hand, never does any good, rather a great amount of harm. The poor are often the happiest of people – far more so than the rich, but though they may be envied, no one will be found willing to take their place.

Q. 3: Use any five words from the list below in your sentences clearly bringing out their meanings. (10 Marks)

I. Banal

IV. Tint

VII. Amalgam

VIII. Zenith

Search

Title The Gifts of Poverty.

Subject verb disagreement found.

Poverty gives wisdom. ~~Gifts~~ Peoples are mostly the poor and Poverty polished a man inside and outside and they can fulfill the difficult tasks ~~and~~ happily. History proves that goodness is measured by character not wealth. ~~But~~ people are poor yet ^{they} satisfied by their basic need. Poverty and misery are two different things. Poverty is respectful because it is ~~not~~ given by God, while misery is shameful because it is due to mistake of people. human Poor people are happy if they satisfied with what they have ~~and~~ rich people ^{get} ~~people~~ gets jealousy of them but will not ^{want} replace them.