

Precis

The author during his vacation wanted to visit a place which was not on the list of everyone. He wanted a visit a calm and natural country. While, he was confused, his friend called him and told him about the place in Oklahoma which was according to his expectations. He took a flight and went to that place. It was a town of Cherokee called Qualla Boundary. That place was very artistic and beautiful. They visited different souvenir shops. They were then greeted by a native who would speak English. They however told by John that during off peak seasons that arrange gaming festivals to earn money. After that, they visited an art museum which represented symbols of Cherokee cosmology. After getting back, the author missed his visit and wanted to go to another place similar to it.
