

Freedom in Education.

Three main perspective ~~exist~~ pertain regarding child's freedom in education. First, complete freedom of a child irrespective of ~~or~~ his ill. Second, absolute control irrespective of the his goods. Last, ~~despite~~ freedom, a child must always act righteous. The writer criticizes the last one to being too individualistic and idealistic for if left unchecked a child may not always behave good. Moreover, the writer also points that, the adherents of the last school believe that education only fosters ~~environment~~ essential for development, which is not true. Education equips ~~the man~~ child with skills ensuring peaceful coexistence in communities. The advocates of last group have trained intelligence which can not be generated if child's instincts left unchecked. Education, therefore, provides much more than an environment suitable for development.
