"Significance of Rest"

The main driving force behind the presence of evils in this world is are those people who do not know their goals and responsibilities. Author said that evil is a creature who does not let anyone free or idle in his kingdom, and also refute the idea of laziness or idleness. According to the author, this world which is in a mess and chaos state, is a result of undirected energy. He said that although the main purpose of life is to work hard and to do something but taking rest or break is also good for society. He suggested rest for different politicians and religious groups. Religious group who wasted their energies on trivial matters, should take some rest and focus on important social matters.

"Devastating Impacts of War"

Author concluded his study about breakdowns of civilizations, by stating "no new discovery". Means has only caused destruction and chaos, not anything good. War is a dangerous in nature, it stays dormant Unless it cause devastating impacts in the society and on its people. In early civilizations, wars cause great sufferings and devastating impacts on human lives, as compared to its benefits. But with the gradual increase in arsenals and nuclear powers, states consider war as an opportunity to show off their nuclear powers to their enemies. In this way, war has become a fatal disease for the developing states. Author suggested two ways through which wars could be stopped. First, If an individual stopped themselves from ~~be~~ taking part in any action that could cause a war-like situation. So, a war could be avoided. Second, if any peace strategy is adopted between countries, the looming affects of war could be dismissed. According to the author, the latter one is effective.
