THE ESSAY

"Because I could not stop for Death, He kindly stopped for me."

- Emily Dickinson

These lines of poem metaphorically suggests that life's big milestones, like marriages shouldn't be rushed - they come when they're meant to. This perfectly aligns with the idea that delaying marriages could lead to better outcomes. Delaying marriages gives an opportunity for individuals to get a better education, become financially stable and independent. Moreover, it helps out to polish personality, character and achieve the goals and life ~~was~~ that dreamed of. The causes of delaying marriages highlights financial instability, job less, fear of getting married to wrong person, age factor, not getting good proposals due to appearance or personality, all these become a great causes of delaying marriages. While on the other hand, the consequences of delaying marriages have a great contribution in individual's life, as it gives opportunities to think about one's self, to improve ~~y~~ lifestyle, it includes independent, capable of fulfilling the responsibilities, well-settled, better education, marrying to right person, the one who is loyal, respectful. All these consequences leads

-towards the life of full of independency, enjoyment and to get whatever they dreamed of. Hence, delaying marriages have a positive impact over one's life.
