Implication of Weather on Mankind.

The benefits of cold weather are most apparent in ~~temperate~~ European countries. Cold weather acts as an impediment to survival thereby calling into action all human efforts. It does activate energy but the energy remains unutilized in the face of ~~hopelessness~~ to overcome the obstacles. Contrarily, during hot climate the absence of obstacles leads to no exertion. Hence, ^h Human activity is the result of continuous struggle against ~~obstacles~~. Moderately cold ^{temperate} weather ^{remains} best suited for mankind as man struggles for survival against weather with hope and ~~perseverance~~. He acquires essentials for his survival and keeps his body nourished. On the Equator, the same man behaves differently. The ~~lack~~ ^{absence} of cold weather enables man to ~~strive less~~, paving way for an easy life. Not much is done for survival. Even human behaviour is impacted by climate changes. During summers, man takes life easy whereas in winters he is more into hard work and exertion.

Must be Done.

The Evils that prevail in the world are not because of idleness rather because of misdirected diligence. The writer believes that of all the beings, the devil is the busiest creature and laziness would be that in his kingdom a punishable offence. The world today is in chaos not because nobody is doing anything but because everybody is doing everything. The continuous human urge of always working hard has lead to major catastrophes. If only mankind denounced laziness to be a crime, the world would have been much peaceful. Everyone, including statesmen & kings, rulers and dukes, must shift away from the rule of a living a strenuous life. Only the disasters like the World Wars could be prevented.
