Freedom in Education; its role in Child's growth

main idea is picked but there is no coherence in the precis precis exceeds word limit as well not satisfactory 5/20

The writer argues<sup>d</sup> that these are three main school of thoughts on freedom in education. Firstly, those who say that children should be free; Secondly, those who say children should be under observation, <sup>however,</sup> largest believers are those who say they should be free but beside this, they should be always good, ~~but in reality it is impossible~~. Those who believe that freedom will ensure moral perfection, think<sup>d</sup> that education should merely offer suitable environment for development, ~~nothing more than this~~.

~~The~~ writer disagrees<sup>d</sup> with this, as it neglect the importance of education. He argued<sup>d</sup> that in our communities, it demands co-operation and would be baseless to demands exceptional result.

~~However, given by education of science and technology, existence of large population in limited area is possible.~~ Education also helps in social growth like mental and moral etiquettes besides opportunity for individual growth, which cannot be acquired completely without education.
