

Youth Involvement In Governance Structure: Challenges and Prospects.

Outline:

A. Introduction:

a. Aiming for good governance is the first step towards progress.

b. Involvement of youth in governance presents numerous challenges and prospects.

c. Thesis Statement.

B. Nexus Between Youth Involvement and Good Governance:

C. Challenges of Youth Involvement in Good Governance: Structure:

1. In a developing country, huge competition becomes a hurdle in the involvement of youth in governance structure;

2. Young generation lacks the required skill set of governance;

3. Seats are usually allocated through nepotism or bribery in a developing country;

4. Radicalized youth refrain from involvement in governance structure;

5. Red tapism impedes the involvement of young generation in governance structure;

6. Low freedom of speech reduces the incentive for youth to involve in governance structure;

D. Prospects of Youth Involvement in Governance Structure:

1. Teenagers, having interest in serving the country, are more likely to become part of bureaucracy;

2. Patriotic kids might give their input to local government in the form of ^{participating in} various surveys;

3. Youth, with political background, loves to become the part of local government;

4. Youths involvement compels the institutions to promote transparency;

5. Younger generation shows more dedication after becoming part of governance;

6. Good salaries entice the younger generation to become part of local government;

E. Conclusion:

Essay:

Good governance is the backbone of a country's progress. For a developing country, it is most essential to work to on their governance structure. Every generation has their own role in governance structure; however, developed countries focus more on the involvement of youth in their governance structure. Although youth plays an ~~sign~~ important role in the governance of a country, there are numerous challenges present for youth to participate in their governance structure. To start with, in a developing country, huge competition impedes the involvement of youth in governance structure. Similarly, lack of required skill set and nepotism further become a hurdle in the path of youth involvement in governance structure. Likewise, radicalized youth refrains from participating in governance structure. Just like challenges, there are numerous prospects of youth participation in the governance structure. Interest of the teenagers propels them to become a part of bureaucracy. Similarly, patriotic youth participates in various surveys and become part of local government. In a nutshell, there are numerous challenges and prospects of the involvement of youth in governance structure.

Before diving deep into the challenges and prospects, it is essential to know the nexus between youth involvement and good governance.

Good governance depends mainly on the involvement of its youth. They share their different insights and drives the governance bodies towards progress. They give their valuable time and feedback for improving their country's governance. Thus, involvement of youth ^{in governance structure} is a key pillar of good governance.

Ghazi Paper

Pakistani Women And Leadership

Positions: Prospects and Policy Measures:

Outline

A. Introduction:

- a. Rising Role of women in Pakistan
- b. Pivotal leadership role played by women in Pakistan
- c. Thesis Statement:

B. Overview of Women Journey from Tokenism to Leadership Positions:

C. Prospects of Pakistani Women Attaining Leadership Positions:

- 1. Hardwork can lead women to attain top political positions;
 - a. Benazir Bhutto (1st Women PM of Pakistan)
- 2. Women can become an inspiration of growth for their counterparts;
 - a. Maryam Nawaz (CM Punjab)
- 3. Women can become a role model for others to follow;
 - a. Malala Yousafzai
- 4. Women has become top writing contributors to Pakistani Newspapers
 - a. Rabea Zakiya

5. Women has been to top rank

military positions; female

a. Nigal Johar (1st Lt. General)

6. Women has played distinctive role in sports;

a. Maria Toorpakāi Wazir (Squash)

D. Policy Measures for Pakistani Women to Attain top leadership positions:

1. Women's education has been made compulsory till 16 years age;

2. Women has been given constitutional protection against harassment at workplace;

3. Special quotas have been allocated for women in competitive exams;

4. Reserved seats have been allocated to women in different political spheres; public

5. Separate transport has been arranged
for women in Punjab;

6. Merit-based promotion is ensured
in military to curb glass ceiling
for women;

E. Pragmatic Measures for Improving Women's Leadership Role in Pakistan;

1. Empower women economically;

2. Ending the patriarchal mindset;

3. Curb the wrong misuse of religion;

F. Conclusion;

Ghazi Paper

Essay

MOTOWOTOFOSO

Date:...../...../20.....

Since the Independence of Pakistan women have played distinctive leadership roles in Pakistan. There have been numerous hurdles for women to play the leading role; however, it was the courage and resilience of women like Fatima Ali Tinnah and Begum Rana Liaquat Ali Khan that made this harder role look easier. With the passage of time, women like Benazir Bhutto, took leadership role of women at its peak in Pakistan. This increased the prospects of Pakistani women to attain the leading positions. It has become evident that through hardwork women can attain top political positions in Pakistan. Similarly, women can become an inspiration & growth for their counterparts. Likewise, women can become a role model for others to follow. In the same way, women has been the top writing contributors to different newspapers. Moreover, the different policy measures for Pakistani women to attain top leadership positions are discussed ahead. No doubt, women's education has been made compulsory till sixteen years of age. Besides, women has been given constitutional protection against harassment at workplace. Additionally, women have been allocated special quota in the competitive exams of Pakistan. Thus, prospects of Pakistani women ^{to attain top leadership positions} have increased significantly and the policy measures, regarding enhancement of women leadership roles, have also been improved tremendously.

Ghazi Paper

To start with, hardwork can lead women to attain top political positions in Pakistan. Women overtime have proved that nothing can stop them from attaining top political positions, if they remain steadfast in their goal. Women, like Benazir Bhutto - first female Prime Minister of Pakistan - , have proved that everything is possible through hardwork. In patriarchal societies, like Pakistan, it is never easy for a women to attain such top political position; however, it is the continuous hardwork that can make difficult tasks look easy.

Ghazi Paper