

Title: An exotic trip to Cherokee.

The author wanted to enjoy an exotic trip far away from common crowded tourist point.

Fortunately, he agreed on his friend's suggestion and took a flight to Cherokee, a country state of Oklahoma. On his visit to a town Qualla Boundary, he was stunned by the aesthetic beauty of the village. He encountered with a middle age fluent English speaker

"George" on his way when he entered the souvenir shop. George

on his lunch with the author too much detail opened up about his financial struggles and means of living other than this shop. He shared about "Bingo-weekend" as one of the suitable ^{returns of} income. ~~return~~.

The author's trip came to an end with a visit to an art museum and a desire to visit another exotic place.

word count : 441

1/3 of Precise : 147.

be precis and to the point
need improvement
dont write details
dont over explain
need improvement 8/20

~~Title~~ The notion of laziness

Many people in this world are against those who are up to something rather they should be against ^{the} "Hidden Devil" laziness.

incorrect interpretation

Many people in this world find themselves unable to do something not because they are ~~very~~ lazy or ~~because~~ they lack potential but because they are mis directed.

If all the great monarch authorities, statements instead of rushing to places, dissipating their energies and working according ~~to~~ to their potential end up sitting back and relaxing or lounging on the hilly maintain then the world would be different from today.

sentence is too long

~~But one should use time wisely.~~
Even if half of the politicians surrender the idea that laziness is a crime, we would take advantage of that. The religious sects hold conferences every now and then but all the end up is discussing about women clothes instead they should be employed for laying back and to stare at the sky.

DATE: _____

DAY: _____

word count: 570

1/3 of precis: 190

attend to pointed out
mistakes
need improvement
over all average content
8/20