Nizar Hussan: Voice For Palestine.

Nizar Hussan, a film producer, born in 1960, and grew up in village of Mashhad. He pursued higher education in anthropology at Haifa university. In 1994 he mock the idea of Israel's independence, as he see this as a act of stealing Palestine land, in his short movie called as Independence. Additionally, in his film, My Grandfather's Path, he interpret ~~about~~ a trap, related to psychology. He says choose your enemies wisely, as there is a greater chance for you to be like them.

According to him if someone wants to preserve himself from trap, he needs to work on things he admires. One of his latest film, one such work, which is about Israel's illegal presence and world negligence on Palestine matter. Ultimately, Nizar Hussan wrote about Palestine.
