Title:

Cold as a source of human energy.

COLD WHAT?

Positive effects of cold are clearly visible in northern Europe, as it acts as an obstacle to intensify human energy. Both, the impossible obstacles and total absence of obstacles make human energy numb. Therefore, moderate cold weather strengthens humans, as it encourages to work in difficulties, but not a hopeless struggle. The same pattern is followed by ourselves, as hot weather leads to laziness, and cold weather motivates physical and mental activities.
