

Pleasure Principle & Human Sufferings

Programme of pleasure principle decides the aim of life. This principle controls the system of mental apparatus. There can be no doubt about its efficiency, yet its programme conflict with everyone, both on large scale and small scale. People feels that happiness of man is not included in plan of creation. It comes from satisfaction of needs. Human nature derive enjoyment from contrast and rules of state, thus happiness is limited by constitution. The author says that it's relatively easy to experience unhappiness, and identifies three factors that contribute to human suffering. These are from themselves, from external world and last from their relations to other peoples. The suffering from last factor is more painful ~~than~~ than others two and it is regarded as gratuitous addition.
