

The year 2025: A turning point for Pakistan

Outline

1- Introduction

Thesis statement: The year 2025 has remained a turning point for Pakistan in political, economical, social, security, and technological domains, embarking the country towards progress and development.

2. A bird eye view of the term "turning point"

3. Key factors determining that the year 2025 is a turning point for Pakistan

3.1. Pakistan's improved global image regarding robust security

C-I-P- Trump's appreciation of PAF

3.2- The country's good relation with two rival global power

C-I-P- Pakistan's good ties with the U.S.A and China

3-3 The dynamic shift in country's foreign policy from security to economy to improve economy

C-I-P- Pakistan's relation with Russia regarding steel Mills

3.4- Pakistan's representation at global forum

Pakistan representative of UNGA

3.5- The country's improvement in economical sector

Proper tax system, privatization of PIA

3.6- Progress in technological and digital world

Pakistan spent $3B in technology

3.7- Climate change challenge

Flood in 2025

3.8- Dominance of executives over judiciary

26th and 27th amendment

3.9- Role in counterterrorism

4- Way forwards to undermine challenges in turning point for Pakistan

4.1- Political stabilization

4.2- Literacy

5- Conclusion

Pakistan has long remained a victim of crises, faced global, national and local disturbances since its inception. These disturbances affected Pakistan politically, economic, social and technological. However, the year 2025 has proved a decisive turning point in the history of Pakistan. Pakistan's improved global security status, its good relation with two rival superpowers, and a dynamic shift in its foreign policy to improve economy are key factors determining that the year 2025 is a turning point for Pakistan. Moreover, Pakistan's representation at global forum, the country's improvement in economical sector and technological domains are key indicators that the year 2025 is a turning point for Pakistan. Likewise, the year 2025 has dominated executives over judiciary proves a turning point for Pakistan. Similarly, climate change disasters and Pakistan's role in counterterrorism reclaim the argument that 2025 has remained a turning point for the country.

There remains some challenges; however, political stabilization and climate resilient infrastructure are the way forwards to undermine those challenges. Thus, the year 2025 is a turning point for Pakistan, embarking the country towards progress.

and development.

Before moving ahead, it is imperative to define the term "turning point" for the country. The term turning point refers to a situation or moment when the whole scenario the country passes through gets changed. It may have positive and negative connotation. In 2025, Pakistan has gone through many situations which proved a turning point for its development and destruction. For instance, its good ties with the USA and China are turning point for its economy and security, while climate change is a turning point for its destruction of infrastructure. Hence, the year 2025 proves a turning point for Pakistan.

To begin with, the country's improved global robust security is an indicator that the year 2025 is a turning point for Pakistan. Pakistan has been considered a coward country with no retaliatory attack on India in 2016, and 2019.

In May 2025, Pakistan's retaliation on India courageously and bravely is proof that Pakistan is no easy target. Moreover, the country's air force outstanding performance in striking down India Rafale Jet further improves country's global status. Trump's appreciation toward Pakistan Air Force performance in May 2025 in United Nation General Assembly marks the country's improved global status. Hence, Pakistan improved global status regarding security is an indication that the year 2025 is a turning point for the country.