Health Issues in Pakistan and way forwards

Health is one of the blessings of the Allah. Human beings has been searching for better treatments and preventions since the genesis for healthier life. However, developed countries have paid much attention in the health sector in order to improve living standard. While developing countries like Pakistan, health is totally neglected from individual to government level. This neglect not only affect living standard but also creates problems for sectors such as education and economic contribution in the country development. The issues in health sector of Pakistan are not new, but are as old as Pakistan. From the lack of hospitals to untrained and unexperienced doctors is the one of the most prominent issue in Pakistan. Second is that hospitals are not sufficient in modern instrument. Moreover, Taboo in tribal and rural areas is also a pose in health concern. Therefore, Pakistan is a dire need to build more hospitals along with trained doctors. And provide modern instruments in hospitals. Last but not the least, the government must initiate awareness programme about health and its importance especially in tribal and rural areas to make people life healthier and happier.
