Introduction

The conflict between Palestine and Israel is not just a battle over land; it is the battle over truth. In the age of 24 hour news and social media, the "war of narratives" has become as important as the war on the ground. Traditionally, mainstream media has acted as a filter, often framing the story based on the political interests of powerful nations. However, the rise of digital platforms has changed the game, allowing ordinary people to share their stories directly with world. It has led to a flood of propaganda and fake news. Ultimately, the media plays a decisive role in this conflict because it decides who the world sees as the victim and who it sees as the aggressor, thereby shaping the international response.
