

Ans 1) The main difference between human beings fear of death and children's fear of darkness is of course of thoughts. Children are frightened after horror stories, while a fear in man comes from the end of ones life.

Ans 2) A religious and sacred view of death comes to a person from his sins. When he realizes the consequences of his 'sins' for the next life, he moves to the religious seminaries for a sacred death.

Ans 3) Monks have described painful experiences of self-punishment in their books. Monks have physically violated themselves as the compensation of their sins in order to make themselves clean. Such violations highlight pain of the death.

Ans 4)

According to Seneca, scenario of death is more painful than death itself. A dying man's last ceremonies make the saddest conditions for a man.

Ans 5)

Circumstances and ceremonies of a dying person are the most horrible. A dead body seems calm, yellowish, situation of sorrow in friends and family, and the last ceremonies are some facts that make death as a terrible end.