

An 1: The difference between human beings "fear of death" and children's fear of darkness is based on imagination and reality. The children's fear of darkness is based on imagination, they heard some stories about ghost and thieves but the human beings fear is based on reality. They heard some stories about how a person dies and how it feels. So in this way these both fears are different from each other.

An 2: The religious and sacred view of death is that, if human knows the purpose of death. It means if he knows and take death as punishment of the sins he committed or if he is pious he will enter into another world. In this way a human being should know the purpose of death and his view about death.

An 3: The painful experience described by the monks in their book is about physical tortures. They went through many painful physical torture just to show that death is more worst or more painful than physical tortures due to this the fear of death has increased more among humans. Through these experiences human come to know that death is more painful.

An 4: Seneca's view about death is that the circumstances and ceremonies of death frighten people more this means that he wants to emphasize it was the manner of dying not a death itself. People are frightened about the manner of dying because they heard it was the most painful and that's why people fear the most as death itself.

Ans/5: There are some facts that make death appear more horrible is that, the irregular movement of the dying person and his pale face it look like that someone sucked his blood and his uttering groans can be heard and all the people mourning ~~are~~ over his death and some rituals are performed. These are the facts that makes death appear more horrible.
