

(1)

The children's fear of darkness is only a myth which is created by telling them stories of ghost and thieves while human being's fear of death is a reality which they experience from the funeral rituals of society. They got terrified about their deaths. In this way, human being's fear of death is different from the children's fear of darkness.

(2)

If a person makes a view about death in such a way that it is an opportunity to enter in another world. In this world, he will experience a lot of things again. He will spend another life there. He will get an opportunity to meet God. This point of view of death is a religious and sacred view of death.

(3)

Monks have described some painful experiences in their books such as physical torture upon themselves to get self-purification. Actually, these activities are inhumane and creates fear in others. Some people think that the pain of death is so agonizing that cannot be described.

(4)

According to Seneca, people get more terrified about death from the rituals and ceremonies of death, shown by society. He thinks that people will not feel fear if they don't see all such ceremonies of death. He believes that society and circumstances create fear otherwise people will not feel fear.

(5)

When a person is dead, there is a uproar around him. His family, relatives and friends are weeping at the departure of his soul. His body is seen to be convulsive and his face appears to be absolutely bloodless and pale. All such facts make death ^{appear} more horrible than it would be otherwise.