TRANSLATION

History is full of accounts of successful people who commenced their lives under quite challenging circumstances, but later went on to become some of the most successful and renowned personalities. Success, respect and fame is never served to you on a silver platter, it is only money which can be presented to you on a platter and that too on the condition that your forefathers are affluent so you can inherit their wealth. You can buy materialistic goods with wealth, but not the happiness.

Sometimes it takes eons for a man to earn respect, whereas only a moment is enough for ~~earn~~ him to earn humiliation or become controversial.

The history is replete with such successful people who began their lives in extremely difficult situations, but with time, they became successful and famous personalities. Success, respect, and fame cannot come to you on a platter, only wealth can be bestowed upon you if you have ancestral property. For this, it is also imperative that your forefathers have left you with some property, only then you can gain wealth. With wealth, you can buy worldly possessions, but you cannot buy happiness. Sometimes, it takes many years for a person to earn respect or fame, and it takes only a moment to lose it by becoming involved in a dispute or by committing a shameful act.
