

PART-II

QUESTION NO:02

Q - Make a précis with a suitable title:

Identity Crisis Within One Identity - Pakistani

Frans van Liere, in his book - Pakistan: a hard country, wrote that Pakistani soldiers faced extreme pressure ^{on} their duty and emotional manipulation. The stress is even acute which would put them into crisis of their faith, between duty and religion. As the commander commands to stop fight against the invaded foreign forces in the country. This leads to the divide within in the army group. Resultantly, the state crisis would increase because of the division in the defender of the state, eventually, it would lead to insurgency in country. Moreover, religious-ethnic identity crisis are also prevailing which reflects in the elections. It challenge in uniting Pakistanis behind a revolution because of this ranging regional identities to families disputes. The call for change is ineffective due to this. Hence, Pakistan is a single nation with many identity crisis within it.

QUESTION NO: 07

Q Translate the following into English:

”آج کل اس نفسا لقمہ کی دور میں
زندہ ہے پاکستان تو
زندہ ہے سب ہیں“

Translation:

In today's self-centred era, every one straightens their hair. No one cares about other. Neither true love in heart more sincerity. Moral values are on the verge of decline. We are ^{not} only self-fish with our own people but also with the state. Have we ever thought together that, in this country, where once a peace of romance prevailed, now, the specter of terrorism spreads. But still nothing is wrong. If we truly love Pakistan and ^{look} sweep our own collars, we can remove a lot of our mistakes. We are the architect of yesterday. We have to remove all the ethno-religious divide, rich-poor disparity and class division. We have to stand together to make a prosperous future of the country. Do pray, all the people unite together and start worrying for this country because if Pakistan is alive, we are alive.
